UM INSTITUTE TO
TRAIN YOUTH DEVELOPMENT
WORKERS

MISSOULA--

The Institute for Social Science Research at the University of Montana has contracted with the Montana Division of Vocational Rehabilitation to train the youth development workers who will serve in selected rural Montana communities in the Rural America Project.

The project is part of a national effort by the Office of Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Development of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, whose goal is to reduce juvenile delinquency rates nationally.

Ray Worring and Lynn Fredlund of the institute's staff will be training directors. The institute was previously awarded a contract for research and data collection for the Rural America Project.
